choice of John C. Rose for temporary chairman. This was soon followed by the formal withdrawal of the name of William T. Malster, who had made a special canvass for the gubernatorial nomination. Lowndes's nomination was then made by a standing vote, amid much enthusiasm. The other candidates were nominated with little position. The convention adjourned at o'clock, after being in session a little over four hours.

The platform is confined to State issues, and opens with a demand for a reassessment of property. The sixth plank is as

That all the ingenious devices by which the leaders of the hitherto dominant party in this State have sought to prevent a free and fair expression of the public will at the polls shall be swept away.'

The succeeding planks declare for control of election machinery by the people of the counties, annual registration in Baltimore. strict court supervision over election officers and the right of independent nominees to ecure place on the official ballot. The last plank in the platform is as follows:

"We condern the partisan management of the oyster police force of this State, and we hereby denounce every effort to deprive the people of their independent right to the public oyster beds, and we announce our unalterable opposition to the leasing or selling of the same."

INDIANS MUST WORK

PROF. HAILMANN THINKS THEY SHOULD EARN THEIR BREAD.

Result of His Observations in Indian Territory-Secretary Morton's Statement of Exports and Imports.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 .- W. N. Hallman, superintendent of Indian schools, came in to-day from El Rene, where he has been attending a convention of teachers in Indian schools in the Southwest. Mr. Ha!lman said to-day that there is not an Indian tribe in Oklahoma which is not able to take care of itself in the main by labor. and he takes the position that the aid being given the Indians by the government is an actual injury to them. He says that it is useless to educate the Indians and send them home during vacations to be nded with lazy parents, who are being fed by the government. The Cheyennes and Arapahoe Indians are citizens of the United States; they vote at elections and at the same time they are getting government help. Many white men would take government supplies if they could get them, but it would be an injury to them, as it is to the Indians. The Professor says the Indians should be made to work for a living, where they have land suited to itural pursuits, and the method now ue is a great injury to the Indians es, but does not offset the work lian Office is likely to take a new de-Indians. The plan will probably be to place a lump sum to the credit of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, to be used at his discretion, in cases where Indians should work for a living or are rendered unable to do so by sickness, and in this way force the Indians to be self-sustaining.

Foreign Markets.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 .- The Secretary of Agriculture to-day issued a supplement to the publications on the views on foreign markets. It shows that, notwithstanding the depression of business in 1894, the United States exported $889,843,000, against $847,665,194 in 1833. Three-fourths of the amount came from farms. The English-speaking people of Europe bought of American exports $51,-000,000 worth, and, taking the British possessions altogether, they took $523,000,000 worth. The United States imported from Great Britain $107,000,000 in 1894, or 16 per control of our entire imports. cent. of our entire imports. Good Prices for Cattle.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 .- Samuel Degen, a cattle shipper, of Chicago, who recently salled for England with 208 fat cattle, has returned here, and reports that not a single ne was lost on the trip. When the cattle arrived in England they were in a little better condition than when shipped, averag-ing about 1,360 pounds. The cattle, were, as a rule, well graded. The polled Angus brought the highest price. The whole 308 averaged about $97.50 a head. It is stated at the Agricultural Department that the polled Angus grades are more in demand in Europe than any other cattle, Herefords com-

CROSS WAS HIT HARD. Gayle Puzzled the Hoosiers, Who Found Him but Six Times.

DETROIT. Aug. 15.-The home team played in better form to-day, and batted touching up Cross's delly for seventeen safe hits, with total of twenty-eight Cross was not given good support, Roat going all to pieces at short and Canavan's and McCarthy's errors also cost runs. With the exception of the second inning, Gayle was a complete puzzle to the visitors, Motz being the only batter to get a clean hit thereafter.

Canavan's fumble of Nicholson's easy grounder in the first inning, followed by a single, a base on balls, another single and Twineham's home run, gave the Tigers five in the first. Indianapolis did nearly as well in the second, landing on Gayle's delivery viciously. Motz was hit, then Mc-Carthy lined out a triple, Newell a double and after Woods had been retired McFarland batted out a home run. Cross struck out and Hogriever got a single, but was thrown out at second. The visitors got a man as far as second only once thereafter. The "Tigers" continued hitting the ball all through the remaining innings, but earned only four of the nine runs they gathered in. In trying to beat Canavan to irst in the eighth on a grounder, which Strouthers had fumbled and which Nicholson had fielded, the latter strained the ligaments of his right thigh and fainted away on the field. LARGEST MAN IN THE WORLD. Late Albert Whetstone, of California, Weighed Nearly 500.

San Francisco Examiner. The largest man in the world, Albert Whetstone, is dead. At least, he was called, and called himself, the largest man in the world, and he was certainly of a size to make him remarkable.

Whetstone died on the 13th of June, at Fortuna, and was at all events certainly the largest man in the United States. He was born in Atlanta, Ind., on March 11, 1867, and when four years of age was the smallest of a family of seven children. At the age of five he was scarcely able to walk, and could talk but little. He made up for this lack of stature in later years, but, like all very large men, he was never very strong. He came of a family noted for large

His mother, who is still living, weighs 345 pounds, and she has two brothers weighing 320 pounds apiece. She also had two sons, each of whom is over six feet in height, and each of whom also weighs over 300 pounds. When Whetstone was five years old kick in the head from a horse gave him a mental injury from which he never fully recovered, and one year later began to grow tall, and at the same time to take on flesh at an alarming rate. When twenty years old he was of enormous propor-tions, and having attracted the attention of a showman he was engaged, and made an exhibition tour of the Eastern States. He was a drawing card for the showman, making plenty of money for the manage-ment, but along with his mental weakness he had the confiding disposition characteristic of humanity of the extremely large sort, and was easily beaten out of the greater part of his share of the receipts. He quit the show business after the first experience, and in February, 1891, came to Humboldt county with his parents, and has resided here ever since. He was not content out of a museum, however, and just before his death, which was due to apoplexy, had made a contract to go on exsibition in a San Francisco museum. At the time of his death he weighed 496 pounds, and was of such enormous proportions that it was necessary to cut a hole in the side of the house in order to remove the body. The coffin consumed 101 feet of lumber and weighed 100 pounds. It ws 6 feet 8 inches long, 32 inches wide and 29 inches deep. Owing to its size the funeral services could not be held in the church, as the doors were too small to admit of its entrance, and the sermon was preached out under the trees. Ten men were needed as pall-bearers, and the funeral was attended by people from all over the country.

MINISTER RANSOM EXPLAINS

His Remarks About Extradition of Fugitives Wrongfully Construed.

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 15 .- Matt Ransom, United States minister to Mexico, said to-day that he expected to be well enough to return to his post of duty in about two weeks. His appearance is in every way hearty, but in spite of this, the minister is not unmindful of his late attack. The minister, in the course of a conversation, expressed the greatest regret that the report of an alleged criticism by him of the Mexican government had ever had any existence. In speaking of Mexico, he had invariably expressed a very high opinion of its present administration, of the President and of his Cabinet. "I have the sincerest admiration," he continued, "for President Diaz, and have cherished a warm friendmost considerate to me in every way during my stay in Mexico. I have never uttered a word which I conceived could be construed nto derogation of any official in Mexico. I felt it to be my duty to my government to cultivate the most friendly Mexico and her people and it would have been a serious error for me to have said or done anything that would disturb the confidence between the two governments. I never had thought of any corruption or imropriety on the part of the Mexican offimanner perfectly free from any acerbity, "I do not think that the statement emanatd from malice. It may be possible that in speaking of the alleged position of Mexico n reference to the extradition of fugitives from justice from this company I used some expression to the effect that citizenship was the first and highest element of good government, and that no country could afford to have that great right established by anything like fraud and I doubtless expressed great confidence that upon full consideration the Mexican government, sensitive about its honor, would not maintain that its citizenship could be obtained by any but the most approved and honorable Some inadvertent listener to some the fraud alluded to as applying to Mexican officials and not to the miserable device of the fugitive who had employed it. I have frequently said that it was impossible in this age that any country could alright of citizenship, but on all occasions I have spoken sincerely in the highest terms of ability, patriotism and honor of the Mexican government and its officers." LONGSTREET'S TWO STORIES. An Instance of Great Courage and of Still Greater Mercy.

Ram's Horn. On being asked to recall an instance of martial courage General Longstreet said: "About one of the most remarkable exhibitions of courage which ever came to my personal observation occurred during the Mexican war at the battle of Resaca de la Palma. I was then with General Taylor, on the 9th day of May, 1846, when he ordered his dragoons, under Capt. Charlie May, to charge the enemy's batteries.
Randolph Ridgely, who commanded our battery, as May was about to charge, called to him, 'Hold on, Charlie, until I draw their fire.' I do not know any more interesting case of courage and gallantry than that of Ridgely when he called on me to give him the privilege of drawing the fire that was ready for May, upon himself. May made the charge successfully, and got the batteries of the enemy, and as a result we were victorious that day. I do not know of anything so fraught with true nobility and absolute fearlessness as this act of Ridgely's.

Both of these men were beautiful char-"Can I give you as good an instance of nercy? Yes, hundreds. On one occasion at the battle of Gettysburg, as our confederate lines were advancing, they met with a temporary check. Our troops were firing from behind rocks, and the enemy were advancing behind rocks, also, and firing upon us. Just a little in front of our line where my men stood was a wounded Northern soldier, calling frantically for water. A confederate soldier stepped from behind his shelter, leaving his gun, and held up his hands as a signal to cease firing. The Union troops stopped when they saw his signal, and he ran forward and gave the wounded Yankee his canteen of water, raising his head on his arm, until he had drained the contents of the canteen, then restoring him tenderly to his reciining position on the ground, ran back behind his rocks where he had been, and resumed the battle. The enemy's line resumed firing at the same time, and this simple act of mercy passed amid the greater incidents of that terrible day, and doubtless of the hundreds who witnessed it but few live to remember or relate the

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.-There was little about the racing at Aqueduct to-day to excite interest, except the defeat of favorites. After the fifth race Ballard, on W. B., claimed that McCafferty, who rode Pay or Play, struck him. The evidence went to show that McCafferty was crowded into the rail by Ballard. The stewards cautioned both jockeys against reckiess riding and the case was dismissed. Summaries:

Bingham, who left Chicago to race on ponies to the Atlanta Exposition, passed through this city at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The distance they will travel is 905 miles and they expect to cover it in twenty days. The purse is $1,000 and one of the conditions is that the winning horse must be in good condition on arriving at the end of the journey. They will pass through Indianapolis and Cincinnati on their way.

New Long-Distance Champion. CLEVELAND, Aug. 15 .- Louis Gimm, the crack long-distance bicycle rider of this city, who started, at noon yesterday, at the Cleveland Driving Park, to beat the twentyfour-hour record, ended his task at 12 o'clock to-day, and smashed the American record. Gimm made 453 miles and 1.700 (ointment), and mild doses of yards, and rode the last ten miles in better than a 2:30 clip, running away from his pace makers. Although he took very little rest, he seemed as fresh when he had finished as when he started. The American SCIENTISTS ARE POETS. Two Anecdotes liustrating the Truth of This Apparent Paradox.

Youth's Companion. It is a common error to think of science as opposed to all poetry of life, and scien-tists as the most cold and matter-of-fact nen. In reality the true scientist is al most always a poet at heart; and the greater he is, the more certain is he to be a pure enthusiast, and of a deeply reverent spirit. Kepler, exclaiming in the moment of his great discovery, "O God, I think Thy thoughs after Thee!" is a type of this. Professor Farrar, who occuused the chair of natural philosophy at Harvard University two-thirds of a century ago, was a man ssessed of this enthusiasm for his wor possessed of this enthusiasm for his work, and beloved by his pupils, whom he inspired with something of his own spirit.

One day the class entered the lecture room and found the professor walking backward and forward, with kindled eye and working face, holding a ball in his hand. Presently be stopped and confronted the class and exclaimed, suiting the action to the word "I toss this ball into the air; the earth rises up to meet it, and the stars bow down to do it reverence Probably no member of the class who heard these words ever forgot their ab-solutely accurate lesson; that action and reaction are equal; that the apple which falls to the earth at the same time draws the earth to itself in the exact ratio of their relative weight, and disturbs even the course of the planets and stars. Seless could they forget the grandeur aunity so vividly expressed in that by imagery.
